9 Frankie Lee Rodriguez,

10 Petitioner,

11 v.

12 Charles L. Ryan, et al.,

13 Respondents.

No. CV-13-00158-TUC-DTF

ORDER

15 Petitioner Frankie Rodriguez, presently incarcerated at the Arizona State Prison –
16 Central Unit, in Florence, Arizona, has filed a Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus 17 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254. Before this Court are the Petition and accompanying 18 Memorandum (Docs. 1, 3), and Respondents’ Answer (Doc. 18). The parties consented to 19 exercise of jurisdiction by a Magistrate Judge, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(c)(1). (Doc.
20 20.) The Court finds that the Petition should be denied.
21

22 FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND
23

24 Petitioner was convicted of two counts of first degree murder, two counts of 25 kidnaping, two counts of armed robbery, two counts of thefts of means of transportation, 26 one count each of theft by control, second degree burglary, and theft by control and/or 27 controlling stolen property. (Doc. 3-1 at 65.) Rodriguez was sentenced to multiple prison
28

1 terms, the longest of which were two consecutive life sentences. (Id.) The convictions
2 were based on the following facts, as summarized by the appellate court:

4 On November 1, 2000, Rodriguez and his codefendant Harper, burglarized
5 the home of Harper's estranged father, taking guns, ammunition, and other 6 items. Both men discussed this crime with a third person before and after 7 committing it.

8 In the early morning of November 12, 2000, D. left a friend's home
9 in his red Volkswagen Jetta; D. was not heard from again. Rodriguez,
10 Harper, and a third man were seen driving a red Jetta around noon that day.
11 Other witnesses saw Rodriguez and Harper driving the Jetta during the 12 month of November. On November 14, 2000, an occupied residence was 13 burglarized by two men driving a red Jetta, later identified by the resident
14 as Rodriguez and Harper. On November 15, 2000, the Jetta was discovered
15 abandoned in an alley. Officers searched the vehicle and found guns stolen
16 from Harper's father, a backpack containing papers with Rodriguez's name
17 on them, and a motel receipt in a seat-back pocket, also in Rodriguez's 18 name.

19 On November 28, 2000, A. left her home around midnight to return
20 movies to a nearby video rental store. She never returned to her apartment.
21 Security videos from ATM machines showed Rodriguez and Harper using 22 A.'s debit card to withdraw money, and a bank representative testified to 23 other, unsuccessful attempts to obtain cash. A.'s credit card was used to 24 purchase various items, and several witnesses saw Rodriguez and Harper
25 with A.'s new teal green Blazer. After she disappeared, A.'s cellular 26 telephone was traced and Rodriguez and Harper were identified as suspects.
27 They were captured driving A.'s car and Harper had A.'s cellular 28 telephone, debit card, and credit card with him. Two handguns, several pairs of shoes, and other items were also recovered during the arrest.

After his arrest, Rodriguez gave several statements to police, led police to A.'s body in a remote desert area, and eventually admitted participating in kidnaping and vehicle theft involving A. Rodriguez's shoes were consistent with shoe prints found near A.'s body, and shell casings found in the area matched to a gun found under the Blazer when he was arrested, a gun he admitted having bought. D.'s body was found in the same area the next day during a training exercise for police cadaver dogs. Shoe prints found near the body were, again, consistent with Rodriguez's shoes.
In a telephone call to M., who testified at trial, Rodriguez admitted he had been involved in both killings.

(Doc. 3-1 at 66-67.)

Rodriguez filed an appeal, which was denied by the Arizona Court of Appeals. (Doc. 3-1 at 2, 64.) The Arizona Supreme Court denied review. (Id. at 106.) Rodriguez then filed a petition for post-conviction relief (PCR). (Id. at 108.) The PCR court denied his petition on the merits. (Doc. 3-3 at 21-30.) The Arizona Court of Appeals affirmed the PCR court's denial. (Id. at 53-56.) The Arizona Supreme Court denied review. (Id. at 71.)

LEGAL STANDARDS FOR RELIEF UNDER THE AEDPA

The Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA) established a “substantially higher threshold for habeas relief” with the “acknowledged purpose of ‘reducing delays in the execution of state and federal criminal sentences.’” Schriro v. Landrigan, 550 U.S. 465, 473-74 (2007) (quoting Woodford v. Garceau, 538 U.S. 202, 206 (2003)). The AEDPA’s “highly deferential standard for evaluating state-court rulings” . . . demands that state-court decisions be given the benefit of the doubt.” Woodford v. Visciotti, 537 U.S. 19, 24 (2002) (per curiam) (quoting Lindh v. Murphy, 521 U.S. 320, 333 n. 7 (1997)).

Under the AEDPA, a petitioner is not entitled to habeas relief on any claim “adjudicated on the merits” by the state court unless that adjudication:

(1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or

(2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding.

28 U.S.C. § 2254(d). The last relevant state court decision is the last reasoned state

1 decision regarding a claim. Barker v. Fleming, 423 F.3d 1085, 1091 (9th Cir. 2005)
2 (citing Ylst v. Nunnemaker, 501 U.S. 797, 803-04 (1991)); Insyxiengmay v. Morgan, 403
3 F.3d 657, 664 (9th Cir. 2005).

5 “The threshold test under AEDPA is whether [the petitioner] seeks to apply a rule
6 of law that was clearly established at the time his state-court conviction became final.”
7 Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 390 (2000). Therefore, to assess a claim under 8 subsection (d)(1), the Court must first identify the “clearly established Federal law,” if 9 any, that governs the sufficiency of the claims on habeas review. “Clearly established”
10 federal law consists of the holdings of the Supreme Court at the time the petitioner’s state
11 court conviction became final. Williams, 529 U.S. at 365; see Carey v. Musladin, 549
12 U.S. 70, 74 (2006).
13

15 The Supreme Court has provided guidance in applying each prong of 16 § 2254(d)(1). The Court has explained that a state court decision is “contrary to” the 17 Supreme Court’s clearly established precedents if the decision applies a rule that 18 contradicts the governing law set forth in those precedents, thereby reaching a conclusion
19 opposite to that reached by the Supreme Court on a matter of law, or if it confronts a set 20 of facts that is materially indistinguishable from a decision of the Supreme Court but 21 reaches a different result. Williams, 529 U.S. at 405-06; see Early v. Packer, 537 U.S. 3, 22 8 (2002) (per curiam). In characterizing the claims subject to analysis under the “contrary
23 to” prong, the Court has observed that “a run-of-the-mill state-court decision applying the 24 correct legal rule to the facts of the prisoner’s case would not fit comfortably within 25
26
27
28

1 § 2254(d)(1)'s 'contrary to' clause." Williams, 529 U.S. at 406; see Lambert v. Blodgett,
2 393 F.3d 943, 974 (9th Cir. 2004).

4 Under the "unreasonable application" prong of § 2254(d)(1), a federal habeas 5 court may grant relief where a state court "identifies the correct governing legal rule from 6 [the Supreme] Court's cases but unreasonably applies it to the facts of the particular . . .
7 case" or "unreasonably extends a legal principle from [Supreme Court] precedent to a
8 new context where it should not apply or unreasonably refuses to extend the principle to a 9 new context where it should apply." Williams, 529 U.S. at 407. For a federal court to find
10 a state court's application of Supreme Court precedent "unreasonable," the petitioner 11 must show that the state court's decision was not merely incorrect or erroneous, but 12 "objectively unreasonable." Id. at 409; Landrigan, 550 U.S. at 473; Visciotti, 537 U.S. at 13 25. "A state court's determination that a claim lacks merit precludes federal habeas relief 14 so long as "'fairminded jurists could disagree' on the correctness of the state court's 15 decision." Harrington v. Richter, 131 S. Ct. 770, 786 (2011) (quoting Yarborough v.
16 Alvarado, 541 U.S. 652, 664 (2004)).

18 Under the standard set forth in § 2254(d)(2), habeas relief is available only if the 19 state court decision was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts. Miller-El v.
20 Dretke, 545 U.S. 231, 240 (2005) (Miller-El II). A state court decision "based on a 21 factual determination will not be overturned on factual grounds unless objectively 22 unreasonable in light of the evidence presented in the state-court proceeding." Miller-El 23 v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322, 340 (2003) (Miller-El I); see Taylor v. Maddox, 366 F.3d 992, 24
26
27
28

1 999 (9th Cir. 2004). In considering a challenge under § 2254(d)(2), state court factual
2 determinations are presumed to be correct, and a petitioner bears the “burden of rebutting
3 this presumption by clear and convincing evidence.” 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1); Landrigan,
4 550 U.S. at 473-74; Miller-El II, 545 U.S. at 240.

6 DISCUSSION

8 Respondents do not dispute the timeliness of the petition and concede that both 9 Claims 1 and 2 are exhausted. (Doc. 18 at 4.) Both of Petitioner’s claims allege that trial 10 counsel was ineffective in violation of his constitutional rights.

11 Ineffective assistance of counsel (IAC) claims are governed by Strickland v.
12 Washington, 466 U.S. 668 (1984). To prevail under Strickland, a petitioner must show 13 that counsel’s representation fell below an objective standard of reasonableness and that 14 the deficiency prejudiced the defense. Id. at 687-88.

16 The inquiry under Strickland is highly deferential, and “every effort [must] be 17 made to eliminate the distorting effects of hindsight, to reconstruct the circumstances of 18 counsel’s challenged conduct, and to evaluate the conduct from counsel’s perspective at 19 the time.” Id. at 689. Thus, to satisfy Strickland’s first prong, deficient performance, a 20 defendant must overcome “the presumption that, under the circumstances, the challenged 21 action might be considered sound trial strategy.” Id.

22
23 Because an IAC claim must satisfy both prongs of Strickland, the reviewing court 24 “need not determine whether counsel’s performance was deficient before examining the 25 prejudice suffered by the defendant as a result of the alleged deficiencies.” Id. at 697 (“if 26
27
28

1 it is easier to dispose of an ineffectiveness claim on the ground of lack of sufficient
2 prejudice . . . that course should be followed”). A petitioner must affirmatively prove
3 prejudice. Id. at 693. To demonstrate prejudice, he “must show that there is a reasonable
4 probability that, but for counsel’s unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding
5 would have been different. A reasonable probability is a probability sufficient to 6 undermine confidence in the outcome.” Id. at 694. Petitioner bears the burden of showing
7 the state court applied Strickland to the facts of his case in an objectively unreasonable
8 manner. See Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 698-99 (2002).

11 Claim 1

12 Rodriguez argues that his counsel was ineffective for failing to challenge his arrest
13 for lack of probable cause. He contends that when the police stopped the car in which he 14 was a passenger, they had information only about the driver, his co-defendant John 15 Harper. He states that after victim Gerber was reported missing, the police tracked calls 16 made on her phone and withdrawals made on her ATM card to Harper only. According to 17 Rodriguez, police had no information connecting him to Gerber’s disappearance prior to 18 the stopping of the car and, at that time, he had nothing on him connecting him to the 19 crime. He argues that, if the arrest had been found improper, his subsequent statements 20 would not have been admissible.
21

22 The PCR court made the following findings in ruling on this claim:
23

25 Petitioner was arrested in a vehicle belonging to a victim. He was a 26 passenger. Petitioner provided post-arrest statements. Petitioner contends 27 there was no probable cause to arrest him.

28 Police had video of the Petitioner using victim’s debit card, a

1 witness had seen Petitioner in the victim's vehicle, and the victim's cell
2 phone was traced identifying Petitioner as a suspect. Also, being in a stolen
3 vehicle is a crime. A.R.S. § 13-1803(2).

4 Petitioner has failed to show by a reasonable probability that had the 5 Petitioner's arrest been contested the outcome would have been different.

6 (Doc. 3-3 at 24.)

7 Rodriguez argues that these factual findings by the PCR court were unreasonable,
8 entitling him to relief under § 2254(d)(2). In particular, he argues these facts were not 9 known at the time the vehicle was stopped (he does not argue they were not presented at 10 trial). Respondent failed to address this argument or to acknowledge the PCR court's 11 ruling, even though that is what this Court is tasked to review.

12 Because there was not a hearing on probable cause, evidence regarding what the 13 officers knew at that time was never presented. If a state court's ruling is premised on an 14 unreasonable determination of the facts, satisfying § 2254(d)(2), this Court then reviews
15 the claim de novo. Maxwell v. Roe, 628 F.3d 486, 495 (9th Cir. 2010). The Court has 16 insufficient information to evaluate the factual finding by the PCR Court. Therefore, the 17 Court will presume the factual finding was unreasonable and conduct a de novo review 18 based on the available evidence.

19 The following facts were known to the police at the time the vehicle was stopped.
20 Contrary to Petitioner's argument, the officers knew the vehicle was stolen at the time
21 they stopped it. This is established by all of the police documents upon which Petitioner
22 relies. (Doc. 3, Exs. B, C, D at 1, 3.) At trial, there was testimony that when the police 23 stopped the car, which was driven by Harper, Rodriguez attempted to flee. (Doc. 18, Ex.

1 C at 69-71.) A semi-automatic pistol was found underneath the passenger side of the 2 vehicle after Petitioner and Harper exited from it. (Id. at 76-77.)

4 The Court assesses whether, on the facts of which it has proof, there was probable
5 cause to arrest Rodriguez. “Probable cause to effect an arrest exists where the arresting 6 officer has reasonably trustworthy information of facts and circumstances which are 7 sufficient to lead a reasonable man to believe an offense is being or has been committed
8 and that the person to be arrested is committing or did commit it.” State v. Nelson, 633
9 P.2d 391, 395, 129 Ariz. 582, 586 (1981). The PCR court found there was probable cause
10 to arrest Petitioner for violating A.R.S. § 13-1803(A)(2): unlawful use of means of 11 transportation, which is committed if a person “[k]nowingly is transported or physically 12 located in a vehicle that the person knows or has reason to know is in the unlawful 13 possession of another person.”
14

16 The known facts were sufficient under Arizona law for arrest: “we are persuaded 17 that when a police officer stops a vehicle on a public highway for a traffic offense, and 18 then discovers that the vehicle is stolen, he knows that a felony has been committed and 19 has probable cause to believe that one or more of the persons inside the vehicle is 20 participating in the commission of a felony.” State v. Marquez, 660 P.2d 1243, 1246, 135
21 Ariz. 316, 319 (Ct. App. 1983). Further, when officers stop a vehicle known to have been 22 stolen, Petitioner’s flight could be taken by the officers as consciousness of guilt. See 23 State v. Saiz, 476 P.2d 515, 516, 106 Ariz. 352, 353 (1970). The facts as known to the 24 officers were sufficient to support probable cause to arrest Petitioner for violating § 13-25
26
27
28

1 1803(A)(2).

2 Because there was probable cause, there is not a reasonable probability that the 3 outcome would have been different if trial counsel had challenged the arrest. Therefore,
4 Petitioner was not prejudiced by counsel not challenging his arrest. Claim 1 is denied on 5 the merits.

7 Claim 2

9 Petitioner alleges counsel was ineffective for failing to contest the admissibility of 10 his three statements to the police. Rodriguez argues that he was prejudiced because the 11 statements were the central evidence against him, and a motion to suppress would have 12 been granted due to violations of Miranda and lack of voluntariness.
13

14 At the beginning of the first interview started by Detective Deeming at 1:08 a.m.
15 on November 29, the following exchange took place:
16

17 Q . . . But you do have rights and I'm gonna explain to you. I want you 18 to listen carefully.

19 A I have the right to remain silent. Anything I say can and will be used 20 against me in a court of law. If I cannot afford an attorney, one will be 21 provided by, provided for you by the courts and, something like that.

22 . . . .

23 Q You don't have to talk if you don't want to. It won't make us mad, 24 won't change anything. Um, if you want an attorney, you can have one 25 provided. Uh, do you understand all that? You sound like you understand it.

26 A (cuffs hitting table) Yeah, I understand it.

27 (Doc. 3-1 at 172.)
28

At 12:24 p.m. on November 29, Detective Brad Hunt began an interview with Rodriguez by asking if he had been advised of his Miranda rights. (Doc. 3-1 at 209.)

1 Rodriguez confirmed that he had been advised of them, understood them, and was willing
2 to talk to Detective Hunt. (Id.) At 9:45 on November 29, Detective Anderson read
3 Petitioner his Miranda rights, and Rodriguez agreed to talk to him. (Id. at 35.)
4 Throughout the three statements, Rodriguez maintained that he did not shoot either
5 victim, that he was merely present but did not steal either car, use any credit cards or kill
6 anyone. (Doc. 3-1 at 172 to 3-2 at 62.)

9 While counsel and the trial court were discussing jury instructions, trial counsel
10 stated:

11 And I guess I should put on the record at this point that no Miranda or 12 voluntariness motion was filed in pretrial or during the course of trial. That 13 was done specifically as part of the trial strategy. Additionally, we didn't 14 feel that at least Miranda would be supported, a Miranda motion would be 15 supported by the evidence as it stood, and we specifically chose not to raise 16 voluntariness based on the content of the statements and the desire to have 17 them laid before the jury.

18 (Doc. 18, Ex. D at 6.)

19 The PCR court made the following findings regarding this claim:

20 Petitioner made statements to the police after his arrest. Petitioner
21 argues that without these statements the State's case would have been much 22 weaker.

23 Petitioner asserted a mere presence defense at trial. His statements to 24 the police supported this theory. Petitioner's counsel specifically stated on 25 the record that they did not feel a Miranda motion would be supported by 26 the evidence, and they did not raise voluntariness as they wanted the 27 statements before the jury. TR 4-4-02 p 6.

28 It was a tactical decision not to challenge the admissibility of the Petitioner's statements. Trial counsel had a reasoned basis for making this decision. Petitioner has not made a colorable claim.

(Doc. 3-3 at 24.)

1 First, the Court reviews the state courts' factual finding that trial counsel made a 2 strategic decision and assesses whether that finding was objectively unreasonable. See
3 Wood v. Allen, 558 U.S. 290, 301 (2010) (citing 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d)(2)). Counsel stated
4 on the record that he made a strategic decision. Further, counsel fully drafted a motion to 5 suppress the statements for lack of voluntariness and chose not to file it. (Doc. 3-2 at 64-6 71.) Thus, he evaluated his options before making the decision. There is no evidence
7 countering counsel's testimony that he made a strategic decision not to move to suppress 8 the statements. The record supports the state courts' finding that the decision was a 9 strategic one and that conclusion was not objectively unreasonable.
10

12
13 Next, the Court must review the objective reasonableness of the state courts'
14 ruling that counsel's strategic decision fell within reasonable professional judgment under 15 Strickland. See Wood, 558 U.S. at 302-03 & n.3. Rodriguez has presented no evidence
16 that counsel's decision was unreasonable, no opinion from another attorney, no 17 prevailing norms from attorney guidelines, and no evidence from himself regarding the 18 decision. See Matylinsky v. Budge, 577 F.3d 1083, 1092 (9th Cir. 2009) (finding that 19 defendant presented no evidence of unreasonableness that could satisfy "heavy burden" 20 of proving that trial strategy was deficient). Review of the interviews reveals that 21 Petitioner was in fact advised, and aware, of his Miranda rights. As noted above, counsel
22 drafted a motion regarding voluntariness, therefore, he had the relevant information
23 before him to make an informed decision. Cf. Correll v. Ryan, 539 F.3d 938, 951 (9th 24 Cir. 2008) (holding that an uninformed decision cannot be found strategic).
25
26
27
28

1 As stated by the PCR court, the defense was mere presence. This defense was 2 supported by Petitioner's statements, during which he always denied committing the 3 murders. Rodriguez's statements to the police were the only way for the defense to 4 present evidence of mere presence without subjecting Rodriguez to cross-examination.
5 This is not an unknown approach in criminal cases. Overall, it was reasonable for counsel
6 to refrain from seeking suppression of Rodriguez's statements. The state courts' denial of 7 this claim was not an objectively unreasonable application of Strickland.

10 CERTIFICATE OF APPEALABILITY

11 Pursuant to Rule 11(a) of the Rules Governing Section 2254 Cases, this Court
12 must issue or deny a certificate of appealability (COA) at the time it issues a final order
13 adverse to the applicant. A COA may issue only when the petitioner has made a 14 substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2). This 15 showing can be established by demonstrating that reasonable jurists could debate whether 16 (or, for that matter, agree that) the petition should have been resolved in a different 17 manner or that the issues were adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed further.
18 Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000) (citing Barefoot v. Estelle, 463 U.S. 880, 19 893 & n.4 (1983)). The Court finds that reasonable jurists could not debate that the merits
20 of any claim should have been resolved differently. Therefore, a COA will not issue.
21

24 Accordingly,

25 IT IS ORDERED that the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus is DISMISSED.
26

27 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Court should enter judgment and 28

1 close this case.

2 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pursuant to Rule 11 of the Rules Governing
3 Section 2254 Cases, in the event Petitioner files an appeal, the Court denies issuance of a
4 certificate of appealability.
